BERWICK REGISTRATION.

A petition was presented in Court on Monday by C. C. Evans Esq., asking:

1st That the registry of voters of the south east election district of the Borough of Berwick as made by Alonzo Lockard for the year 1893, be set aside.

2nd. That the assessment of that portion of the Borough of Berwick lying east of Market street, as made by Joseph Faust for 1893, be set aside.

3rd. That the Commissioners of Columbia county be restrained from making out the tax duplicates upon the basis of the assessment as made by Jos. Faust for the borough of Berwick lying east of Market street, for the year 1893

The petition is signed by the president and members of the borough council, and sets forth, among other things, that the county commissioners have issued their precept to Jos. Faust to make the assessment of real estate of the borough of Berwick lying east of Market street, and that he has made and returned the same, and that he is not the properly qualified assessor for said district; that Alonzo Lockard was not elected assistant assessor in the southeast election district of said borough in the spring of 1893, but the county commissioners have issued their precept to him and directed him to make the registry of voters of the southeast district, and that he has made the same and returned it, and that the list so made has not been made by the properly qualified assistant assessor, and that the registry of voters so made will disfranchise all of the voters residing in the said southeast election district at the next fall election; that all taxes levied and assessed upon the basis of the assessment as made by Joseph Faust on that portion of the borough lying east of Market street for the year 1893 will be uncollectable.

The Court made the following order:

And now May 8, 1893, upon the presentations of the petition of C. H. Zehnder, president of the Berwick council and other members, the Court grants a rule to show cause why the registry of voters of the southeast election district in the borough of Berwick as made by Alonzo Lockard, and the assessment of that portion of the borough of Berwick lying east of Market street as made by Joseph Faust for the year of 1893 be set aside, and that the commissioners of Columbia county be restrained from proceeding further in making out the tax duplicate upon the basis of the assessment as made by Joseph Faust for that portion of the borough of Berwick lying east of Market street, for the year 1893. Returnable May 29, 1893, at 2 o'clock p. m.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE BUILDING, CHICAGO.

Pennsylvania at Chicago.

SUGGESTIONS TO CITIZENS OF THE STATE WHO VISIT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

First. All Pennsylvanians who attend the World's Fair are advised to first visit the State Building. This they can readily accomplish by entering the grounds at the Fifty-seventh street entrance, near which, and just opposite the great Art Palace, our Building is located. All of the railroads, electric, cable and horse cars lines leading from the centre of the city, have stations at or within a short distance of the Fifty-seventh street entrance.

Second. The State building is specially designed and arranged for the comfort and convenience of the citizens of Pennsylvania. It is provided with general reception room, separate parlors for women and men, ladies' dressing room, smoking room, writing room, newspaper room, press correspondents' room, and ample toilet facilities, etc., etc. Convenient cloak and parcel rooms have been provided upon the first floor of the Building, where all citizens of the State are at liberty to leave such articles as they may not wish to carry around on the grounds.

Third. The Building contains a Post Office to be open during the Exposition hours. Arrangements have been made to collect the mails hourly, and Pennsylvanians who have their mail addressed to the Pennsylvania State building, World's Fair, Chicago, Ill., will be insured prompt delivery.

Fourth. The newspaper room will contain files of all the State journals that are sent to the Building.

Fifth. The Bureau of Information is on the first floor, in charge of a competent superintendent, who will be pleased to aid our citizens with advice or suggestions as to how to see the Exposition to the best advantage.

Sixth. A register of Pennsylvanians who attend the Exposition will be kept, with their stopping place, with the probable time of their stay, etc. etc.

Seventh. No fee, unless it be for blacking shoes will be charged for any service in or about the Building.

Eighth. A cordial invitation is extended to all Pennsylvanians, regardless of race, color or nativity to make the building their headquarters and resting place while at the Exposition, and to avail themselves of the facilities that have been provided. They will find a home and a warm welcome.

A. B. FARQUHAR,
Executive Commissioner,
Board of World's Fair Managers.

The Pennsylvania State Building is one of the most beautiful and striking on the World's Fair grounds and admirably located, near the Fifty-seventh street entrance, directly facing the Art Palace. Style of architecture is Colonial, reproducing the historical clock tower and other features of Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The famous bell which proclaimed "Liberty throughout all the land," will be placed in the rotunda at the main entrance and many historical relics of priceless value, such as Penn's treaty with the Indians, the original charter, portraits of distinguished Pennsylvanians, rare documents, etc., etc., will have a place in the Building

Our State Building was constructed by Pennsylvania mechanics, of Pennsylvania material, the floors of marble or of hard woods, the wainscot, panellings, etc, are taken from the handsomest woods of Pennsylvania forests. This stately and imposing building is surrounded by broad and graceful piazzas, upon which several hundred easy chairs are placed; the main entrance opens into a central rotunda thirty feet in diameter and forty feet high.

In the rear is a large reception room extending the entire length of the Building; to the right and left are the parlors, toilet rooms, etc., etc. Broad easy stair cases lead to the second story, where the waiting rooms, Governor's rooms, and offices of the Executive Commissioner will be located. The doors and windows of the second floor open out upon broad verandas admirably arranged for promenading and sight-seeing; and, outside staircases lead to the roof garden, from which may be had a magnificent bird's-eye view of the grounds and lake.

Surmounting the main facade of the Building are several allegorical pieces of statuary, the Pennsylvania Coat of Arms, the horses developed life size. Flanking this group upon either side are statues of William Penn and Benjamin Franklin. The allegorical groups at the right and left angles of the Building are indicative of the progress and influence developed by the resources of the State, Mines and Mining and others.

The Pennsylvania State Building is the only one in which the kindred arts of architecture and sculpture have been so happily combined. The architect, Mr. Thomas P. Lonsdale, and the sculptor, John J. Boyle, of Philadelphia, are entitled to the greatest credit.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES.

A walk about the spacious campus of our Normal School at this season of the year, is indeed, very pleasant, for the beautiful lawn, and the splendid shade trees make it truly a most delightful spot But apart from the natural beauty, one finds much to interest him, and also much that tells what is being done on every hand both indoors and without, for the comfort and amusement of the students.

That which now most attracts one's attention is the splendid tennis courts. Of these there are five, and all, with gently sloping terraces, and perfect grading are models. To see each "court" occupied by a company of jolly, light-hearted students, and hear their merry "thirty, forty," "Love," which to the uninitiated is simply so much jargon, is certainly no small indication of the character of the students and the discipline of the school.

The passenger elevator is now in operation, and is a model for convenience, and beautiful in point mechanism. Since its introduction, fourth floor rooms which before were always at a great discount, have risen far above par.

This may be for the reason that as we were informed—the third and fourth floor girls have the preference always in the use of the elevator.

The Students' Annual Excursion is being arranged for now, and will go this year to "BLUE HILL," opposite Northumberland. This is a grand place and we bespeak for the students a most enjoyable day. One of Mr. Clements' pleasure boats will in all probability be chartered for the day, and all students who wish, will be given a most enjoyable ride of five or ten miles.

The state examination for our school will begin June 19, and already there is something of the usual tremor and nervousness on the part of the students.

The Senior class numbers one hundred and ten, and there are about one hundred twenty five Juniors. Surely this is a very remarkable showing for our rapidly growing school.

OUR LETTER FROM HARRISBURG.

What Has Been Done in the Legislature—Other News from the Capital.

HARRISBURG, May 10.

Getting ready for final adjournment seems to occupy the mind of every legislator these times and the way business is being rushed through both branches leads one to believe that when the lawmakers meet on June 1, for the last time this session, there will be nothing left for them to do but adjourn in accordance with a resolution adopted in the senate and house yesterday.

Senator Lloyd has amended the house anti-Pinkerton bill on second reading so as to reduce the bond required by special policemen or detectives from $10,000 to $2,000. Among the bills that have passed second reading are the house bill repealing the act requiring the Philadelphia and Delaware River railroad to maintain gates at its intersection with the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, and also the house bill for establishment of boards of arbitration to settle all questions of wages and other matters of variance between capital and labor. The bill requiring contractors to cover the joists of each floor above the third of a building in process of construction with rough boards, for the better protection of workmen, has passed finally in the senate. The governor sent to the senate the name of Thomas Potter, jr., of Philadelphia, to be a director of the Philadelphia Nautical school for six years from May 3.

The senate has passed finally the Farr free text book bill. The vote on the measure was almost a unanimous one in its favor, there being but two votes against its passage.

In the house the appropriations committee has reported another batch of bills providing for appropriations amounting to $2,088,831, all but $640,000 of which goes to charitable institutions. Mr. Cessna has reported the senate judicial apportionment bill with a number of changes. The house has received a message from the governor vetoing the bill introduced by Mr. Clarency, entitled "An act to empower all municipal corporations of this commonwealth to appropriate money for the payment of firemen in service and of firemen not in service disabled in the performance of their duties as firemen." The veto was sustained.

On motion of Mr. Stewart the bill for the revision of the wharf lines on the Delaware river, Philadelphia, was postponed for the present. The amendment to the election law requiring assessors to sit at their residences to perform their duties has passed finally. The Talbot bill, prohibiting persons by sale, gift or otherwise from furnishing cigarettes or cigarette papers to minors, passed third reading. A bill authorizing street passenger railway and traction companies to consolidate, and granting them numerous other privileges, passed second reading. The bill amending the high license law so as to provide that ownership of stock in a brewry or distillery shall not prevent a person from obtaining a retail license was defeated.

On motion of Mr. Crawford, the vote by which the bill permitting the holders of retail liquor licenses to own stock in breweries or distilleries was defeated in the house on Thursday last has been re-considered and the bill placed on the postponed calendar. This bill was defeated in the absence of its author, Mr. Bliss, of Delaware, and the re-consideration was for the purpose of allowing him to be heard in its defense. The senate bill to prevent the spread of tuberculosis among cattle was reported favorably.

In the house the Niles tax bill has been defeated by a vote of 120 to 69. The rapid transit bill has suffered defeat by a vote of 83 to 95.

HARRISBURG, May 9.—In four opinions handed down yesterday by Judge Simonton at the opening of court he again sustained the constitutionality of the Boyer revenue law of 1891. At the beginning of the present year the state was flooded with circulars issued by the smaller trust companies in Philadelphia, setting forth that as the act of 1891 taxed the capital stock of corporations at 5 mills while other property was only taxed 4, the extra mill was unconstitutional, and stating that it had been asked to act as the custodian of a fund for the purpose of having the matter determined by the courts. Nearly every corporation of the State received such a circular and was asked to join in the movement. Some of the circulars also fell into the hands of State officials here.

A number of companies accepted the invitation of the trust company and appeals were accordingly entered, the companies paying four mills tax and appealing from the odd mill. The companies against which judgments were entered were the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad Company, Johnsonburg and Bradford Railroad Company, Bristol Water Company, and Mill Creek Railroad Company, which were argued a short time ago by Mr. Newlin, of Philadelphia. Judge Simonton makes very short work of the constitutional objections, holding that, under the principles laid down in numerous decisions of his court and of the supreme court, classification may be carried to a much greater length than necessary for the purpose of sustaining the tax in question in this case.

The taxation of the capital stock of these corporations at a different rate from the taxation of the personal property of individuals does not result in a want of uniformity forbidden by the constitution. While it is true that the capital stock of corporations represent their property it is not identical with it and cannot in any real sense be said to belong to the same class of subjects as the personal property of individuals.

He holds also that the act of 1891 does not conflict with any of the provisions of the constitution of the United States. Judgments are therefore directed to be entered against the four companies above named for the balance of taxes claimed by the state, with interest at 13 per cent. per annum and attorney general's commission of 5 per cent.

HARRISBURG, May 8.—Hon. George V. Lawrence, an ex-state senator and member of the house at the present time, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday. Mr. Lawrence was in Philadelphia with the house committee investigating the electric trust but returned to this city late on Saturday night. At the time he complained of feeling unwell, but thought little of it and retired to his room in the Commonwealth hotel, where he was stricken as above stated.

The Trouble Failed to Materialize.

CHICAGO, May 10. — The anticipated trouble over the closing of the Chemical bank Monday evening did not occur. Since yesterday morning a policeman has stood at the door of the bank to preserve order, but there was no disturbance on the part of the crowd, although some felt angry because their deposits were accepted Monday. A statement made by President Curry to several creditors that gained access to him, had a quieting effect on the remainder of the depositors.

"Within four or five days we will have money enough to pay one-third of our depositors," said Mr. Curry to a reporter, "and in time every creditor will receive one hundred cents on the dollar. This bank has good backing and its stockholders, who are solid business men, will make good every cent of its debts. A levy will be made on the stockholders of 10 or 15 per cent., and, as under the banking act, they are responsible for double their stock, it is only a question of time when everybody will be paid in full.

"The reason we suspended business was because the extraordinary heavy runs on Saturday and Monday exhausted our currency."

REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Brooklyn, New York
Sept. 16, 1 yr.

A NEW-FASHIONED GIRL.

She'd a great and varied knowledge, picked up at a female college, of quadratics, hydrostatics, and pneumatics, very vast;

She was stuffed with erudition as you stuff a leather cushion, all the ologies of the colleges, and the knowledges of the past.

She had studied the old lexicons of Peruvians and Mexicans, their theology, anthropology, and geology, o'er and o'er;

She knew the forms and features of the prehistoric creatures; ichthyosaurus, plesiosaurus, megalosaurus, and many more.

She'd describe the ancient Tuscans and the Basques and the Etruscans, their griddles and their kettles, and the victuals that they gnawed;

She'd discuss the learned charmer, the theology of Brahma, and the scandal of the Vandals and the sandals that they trod.

She knew all the mighty giants and the master minds of science; all the learning that was turning in the burning brain of man;

But she couldn't prepare a dinner for a gaunt and hungry sinner, nor get up a decent supper for her poor voracious papa for she never was constructed on the old domestic plan.

—Boston Journal.

A Sad Occurrence.

Here is a story I picked up on one of my lecturing tours: A charming young woman, just entering what is called society, met a distinguished lawyer at a reception, and was much flattered when he asked leave to call upon her the next evening. She consulted one or two friends as to the best method of making his call agreeable.

"I'm nearly scared to death," she confessed to one of them. "They say he's awfully smart and I am certain I won't talk well enough to please him. Now you've known him a long time; do tell me what subjects to discuss and I'll run home and get ready for him."

"Well," said the kind-hearted friend; "literature is his fad. You can't go wrong if you turn the conversation into that channel."

With this valuable hint Miss Budd hastened home and devoted the rest of the day to reading.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the young lawyer was ushered into the drawing-room.

"Wasn't it a delightful reception we attended last evening?" he asked presently, by way of opening the conversation.

"Oh, yes," was the enthusiastic response; "but wasn't that sad about poor Mary, Queen of Scots? They cut her head off, you know."

It is to be regretted that the remainder of this very literary conversation is not reported.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Right Man After All.

A head adorned with shaggy and unmanageable whiskers was thrust out of the window, says the Detroit Tribune, and a voice that fitted the beard inquired:

"What is it?"

"Oh, is this Mr. Higgins?" came a still, small voice from the shade of the doorway below.

"Yes."

"Please come right up to 414 —— street just as quick as you can and bring your instruments."

"Oh!—— I ain't no doctor. I'm a carpenter. Dr. Higgins lives two doors below," and the window came down with a slam that told of former experiences of the same kind on the part of the humble artisan.

But Carpenter Higgins had not got comfortably back into his bed before the bell rang again, and, uttering some remarks that were afterwards expunged from the record, he rose once more and went to the window.

"Well, what the deuce do you want now?" he ejaculated.

"Please, sir, "said the little voice, "it's you we want. Pa and ma is shut up in the foldin' bed, and we can't get 'em out."

Knew the Defendant Was Honest.

A pleasing story comes from a Maine court. Farmer A. was the plaintiff; Mr. B., a merchant, the defendant. Farmer A. was giving his testimony and would not be restrained by counsel or court. He was very generous to his opponent, and insisted upon saying that he was an honest man. "And," said he, "I will tell you how I know he is an honest man. I have traded with him for many years. We always settled every four months. One time I asked him how we stood, and he looked at his books and said I didn't owe him a cent. His clerk said there was not a scratch of a pen against me. Yes, Mr. B. is an honest man, I tell you. I just pulled out my wallet, and paid him eight dollars and seventy-five cents that I knew I owed him, and which he did not have charged to me. Oh, there's no doubt but what Mr. B. is an honest man, and a good man to deal with." The next day, as might have been expected, the case was settled by agreement of parties, and withdrawn from court.

Working His Mother.

First Boy—Didn't your mother tell you to get nutmegs?

Second Boy—Yep.

"Then what did ye get cloves for?"

"'Cause she'll want me to go back an' tell 'em I made a mistake an' want nutmegs. Then I'll say I'm orful tired an' don't wanter go back, an' then she'll give me five cents to buy candy."—Good News.

At the Seaside.

Heroic Girl—What has become of the handsome man who cheered so loudly when I rescued that little boy from drowning?

Friend—He is over there on the verandas, proposing to the girl who screamed and fainted.—From the New York Weekly.

Had Same Depth.

"The trouble with Tempy is that he is shallow."

"Tompy? Nonsense. If you had ever tried to fill Tompy with champagne you'd have changed your mind about that."—Truth.

Too Much for Sambo.

Frank Daniels, the comedian, contrives to enjoy life as it passes, and one of his sources of enjoyment is that fund of unctuous humor which he possesses. Not long ago he was in Providence, and while he was at breakfast in the hotel one morning he was annoyed by the attentions of a colored waiter who sought assiduously to scrape acquaintance with him. This negro, a good-natured creature as ever carried a tray, made himself painfully busy about the table, rearranging the dishes, brushing away crumbs, and doing this thing and everything that could possibly serve as an excuse for his presence.

"'Scuse me, boss," said he, "but hain't I seen yo' afore—seen yo' in New York, hain't I?"

"No," answered Mr. Daniels, shortly, "I have never been in New York."

A pause, during which the negro industriously rearranged the dishes on the table, was broken finally by the negro remarking: "Dat surprises me; I'se shuah—yes, sah, I'se almos' willin' to swar I seen yo' 'bout free mont's ago on der corner of Broadway and Twenty-third street."

"No," repeated Mr. Daniels, "I have never been in New York in my life."

"'Scuse me boss," asked the negro, after another pause, "but would yo' min' tellin me wot yo' p'ofession is?"

"I have no objection whatever," answered Mr. Daniels, "I am a peripatetic Thespian."

This knocked the negro speechless for some time, but he continued to busy himself rearranging the glassware and crockery. Finally he abandoned all further pursuit with a sigh. "Boss," said he, in a tone of hopeless resignation, "boss, yo' done got me that time, shuah!"

Limbo Jones Saw the Great Light.

"Good mawnin', Miss Jackson," said Mr. Limbo Jones gallantly to the belle of the quarters.

"I hain' no Miss Jackson," was her discorteous reply.

Mr. Jones looked at her critically. Didn't he know her well? Had he not been courting her off and on for a year.

"Hain' no Miss Jackson?" he said questioningly; "who is you then?"

"Ise Mrs. Lightfoot, sah; da's who I is," and she tossed her head loftily.

"Mrs. Lightfoot? Mrs. Lightfoot?" he repeated slowly. "When dat happen?"

"Las' night at seben o'clock, Mr. Jones."

"Wha' Lightfoot is dat you marry, Miss Jackson?"

"Henry, Mr. Jones."

"Henry, Lightfoot!" he exclaimed angrily. "Whaffur you gwine to marry dat lazy, good-for-nothin' nigga, when you kno I'se been co'tin' you fer mo'n a yea'? Whaffur you do dat, Miss Jackson?"

"Caze he axed me, Mr. Jones."

Then it was a great light shone on Mr. Limbo Jones, and he went to a sequestered spot and kicked himself across a cornfield.

Looked Safer.

The following incident occurred some years ago, when stage-travelling in the White Mountain region was more common than now.

One very dark and cloudy night, one of the well-known Jehus was driving his stage, both lamps brilliantly lighted, and hearing the galloping of an approaching horseman, he pulled up his team to let him pass. In another minute there was a tremendous collision with his leaders, and quickly getting down from his box, he found the rider, an Irishman, had ridden squarely in between the leaders, and all three horses were floundering in the mud. After a good deal of work the animals were at last disentangled, and then the following dialogue took place:

Driver—How in thunder came you in there? Didn't you see my lights?

Pat—Faith I did; an' I thought I'd go atween 'em.

Eligible.

He—Will you marry me?

She—No.

He—Whom are you going to marry?

She—I shall marry whom I please.

He—Well—you please me!—Puck.

One Solution.

Slunson—That boy of ours is the meekest one I ever saw. He lets all the other boys run right over him. He hasn't a spark of fight in him.

Mrs. Slunson—I know it and realize it, dear, and it worries me so to know what occupation will best suit him.

Mr. Slunson—I suppose we might fit him for the Navy.

No Manners.

"I don't like that young man from New York," said a Cincinnati girl.

"Why?"

"Because of his manners. When he called here yesterday he asked for a drink of water."

"Suppose he did?"

"Why, he ate it with his fingers."

A Coming Woman.

Badly Hurt.

"On what grounds did Hawkins get a pension? Was he in the war?"

"Yes—and after it was all over his feelings were badly hurt by his overhearing some one say his record was chiefly for sprinting."—Harlem Life.

Better Still.

"I've got a new baby brother," said Tommy.

"That's all right," answered Freddy, "but I'm going to have a new grown-up brother as soon as sister marries him."—Judge.

He Was Not a Repeater.

Father—Come, now, Bobby, tell me about that dog once more.

Bobby (petulantly)—I ain't goin' t' tell that so many once-es.

None Was Required.

"And when you asked her to wed, she declined?"

"Yes; she dismissed me without ceremony."—Puck.

WARREN A. REED.

Among the Office-Seekers.

From Harper's Weekly.

It is a queer lot of humanity that is filling the streets and hotels of Washington and daily invading the White House and the departments. There is the snug man of fashion who whispers confidentially to the heeler who is supposed to have a "pull," and for the sake of an office is on familiar terms with a man to whom he will hardly speak if he is successful. There is the struggling lawyer who wants an office with its income in the line of his profession, but who is willing to throw his professional future to the winds if he can only draw a salary from the government. He who wants to be a district attorney becomes a Treasury official; he who would go on the bench accepts a foreign mission, fondly hoping that he can do what no one of his predecessors has been able to do, and save money out of the inadequate salary. There are politicians of local fame, who find how attenuated their reputation is when they undertake to spread it out over the whole country, and how much more serious is a national than a county competition. There are nervous, anxious men who have not got on in the world, and whose comfort depends upon securing something from the government. Occasionally there is a man whose past has been shady, but who has prospered and grown rich, and who wants to gild his damaged reputation with a small foreign mission. Then there is the great horde of active political workers whose existence is in politics, who are efficient lieutenants of Congressmen whose standing at home depends largely upon the successive "placing" of their henchmen.

The change that comes over the spirits of most of the office-seekers is the most pathetic thing about this sad spectacle, the most serious reflection on frail humanity. They are so cheerful when they reach Washington, so full of hope and confidence, so content in each other's society, so abounding in good wishes for one another. And then they become so suspicious when they learn of their concrete competitors, and then so worried and anxious, some of them drifting downward from first-class hotels to last-class boarding houses. Finally, when hope is gone or nearly gone, they come to hate the party in whose behalf they struggled, to rail at the President in whose triumph they exulted, and to fume in fury at the successful seekers of offices for which they have not asked.

A Leader.

Since its first introduction, Electric Bitters has gained rapidly in popular favor, until now it is clearly in the lead among pure medicinal tonics and alteratives—containing nothing which permits its use as a beverage or intoxicant, it is recognized as the best and purest medicine for all ailments of Stomach, Liver or Kidneys.—It will cure Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, and drive Malaria from the system. Satisfaction guaranteed with each bottle or the money will be refunded. Price only 50c. per bottle. Sold by C. A. Kleim.

The grand old Liberty Bell, as an attraction at the Pennsylvania Building, is everything it is cracked up to be.—Chicago Tribune.

Going to the World's Fair is like building a house. You may figure all you please on the probable expense, but it is bound to run way above the estimate.—Detroit Free Press.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

In Paint the best is the cheapest. Strictly Pure White Lead is best; properly applied it will not scale, chip, chalk, or rub off; it firmly adheres to the wood and forms a permanent base for repainting. Paints which peel or scale have to be removed by scraping or burning before satisfactory repainting can be done. When buying it is important to obtain properly made. Time has proven that white lead made by the "Old Dutch" process of slow corrosion possesses qualities that cannot be obtained by any other method of manufacture. This process consumes four to six months time, and produces the brand that has given White Lead its character as the standard paint.

John T. Lewis & Bros.

is the standard brand of strictly pure Lead made by the "Old Dutch" process. You get the best in buying it. You can produce any desired color by tinting this brand of white lead with National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

CARLYLE HARRIS ELECTROCUTED.

The Wife Murderer Pays the Death Penalty in the Chair.

SING SING, N. Y., May 8.—In the presence of Warden Durston, the prison chaplain, Principal Keeper Cannaughton six physicians and the witnesses provided by law to be present on such occasions, Carlyle W. Harris, who murdered his wife, Helen Potts-Harris, over two years ago, paid the death penalty in the electrocution chair here to-day. By the killing of Harris the last chapter in one of the most sensational murder cases recorded in the annals of criminal history has been brought to a close and the laws of New York state for crimes of this nature have been fully satisfied.

As there is a conflict of opinion among the American people as regards the guilt or innocence of the executed man, they are now left to weigh both sides of the matter and decide for themselves whether the killing of the condemned was an act of justice or injustice.

The voltage used in electrocuting Harris was 1,700, the same as in the last electrocution. After the current had been turned on fifteen seconds the voltage was gradually reduced to 300 when it was finally turned off and Harris was dead. There was no burning of the skin where the electrodes were placed against the body and there was a general absence of the disagreeable features complained of by physicians and witnesses in the earlier days of the electrocution law. This, of course, is due to the fact that a number of improvements have been made in the machinery of death during the last year.

All of the physicians and others who witnessed the electrocution declare that Harris died a painless death.

After the autopsy this afternoon the body of young Harris will be turned over to his grief-stricken parents who will give it a respectable burial.

Harris said farewell to his father, mother and brother yesterday afternoon and immediately began writing a statement which will be given to the press in a day or so. Last night the condemned man repeated his denial of having committed the crime for which he has suffered death, and said that his execution would be nothing more or less than a judicial murder. Harris did not finish his writing until after midnight.

FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1893.

The World's Fair may be opened on Sunday, after all.

Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew of New York died on Sunday.

No date has yet been fixed for the adjournment of the state legislature.

Carlyle W. Harris, the New York wife poisoner, was executed at Sing Sing on the electric chair on Monday.

If the proposed apportionment bill goes through the Legislature, this judicial district will include Sullivan county. Up to 1874 the district included Columbia, Snllivan and Wyoming, and Montour was in a district with Northumberland. In 1874 Sullivan and Wyoming were made one district, Northumberland was made a separate district, and Columbia and Montour were put in the 26th district, remaining so for nearly twenty years.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, May 8, 1893.

President Cleveland is being importuned to call an immediate session of Congress, and the presence of ex-Speaker Crisp in town started a rumor that he had so decided. If he has, the decision is not made public. There is little doubt that Mr. Cleveland would call an immediate extra session if he knew that it would promptly repeal the Sherman Silver law, but of that he is not certain, and a refusal to repeal might have a bad effect on the financial situation, which has not been affected by the Wall street excitement during last week. Many democrats express the opinion that it would be the proper thing at this time to call an extra session and throw the responsibility of maintaining the government credit upon Congress, but they also express their confidence in the President's ability to do the right thing.

Secretary Carlisle took a long step in the right direction when he demanded the resignation of A. L. Sturtevant, chief of the division of stationery. Sturtevant has been in office 32 years, is rich, a salaried officer of a prosperous safe deposit company and savings bank, and is moreover a ring leader in what is locally known as the "Treasury ring," members of which have for years boasted that no Secretary could get along without them. It has not been two weeks since a local paper printed a list of probable changes in the Treasury, singling out those who belonged to the "Treasury ring" as men whose services it would be impossible for Mr. Carlisle to dispense with and still continue to do business, and even now the same paper says that Mr. Carlisle will upon consideration of the matter request Sturtevant to withdraw his resignation, but all the same he will not. He will probably get rid of every chief who belongs to the ring, just to show them how easy it is to get along without them. He certainly ought to.

"Secretary Lamont," said a New Yorker to your correspondent, "has no intention of remaining in the cabinet. He only accepted a portfolio as a favor to his old friend, the President, and with the express understanding that he would resign as soon as certain work was done in which he was to take part. Exactly what that work is I don't think anybody except Dan and Mr. Cleveland know; but there are good reasons to suppose that it relates largely to the federal appointments in New York, and as soon as all of those appointments—the prominent ones, I mean—are made, I am under the impression that Secretary Lamont will resign and resume his connection with the Whitney street railway syndicate, where his salary was more than three times what he now receives." Secretary Lamont declines to discuss the probability of his early resignation, dismissing inquiries with the statement that he has no present intention of resigning. But there are other things which point to the probability of his doing so. The Secretary of War has less patronage than any other member of the cabinet, but Secretary Lamont has not availed himself even of the little at his disposal, and many believe that it is because he wishes his successor to have the choosing of the officials. Another thing which has been commented upon is that the Lamonts have not given up their residence in New York city, and when Mrs. Lamont was in Washington a short time ago, she spoke very indefinitely about her coming here to live again; and only last week she accepted the presidency of a New York social organization, which would not have been tendered to her had it been supposed that she had any immediate intention of removing her residence to Washington.

Why misrepresentation should be so general in republican newspapers, as to the number of fourth class postmasters appointed, when it is so easy to get the official figures is one of those things that are difficult to understand. The republican postmasters cannot be "fired out" too fast for the average democrat, and it would therefore when viewed through party glasses be rather creditable than otherwise to Mr. Maxwell had he exceeded the record of Mr. Clarkson in putting in republicans four years ago, but he has not come up to that record by a long shot, as will be seen from the figures below. During the first two months of the Harrison administration 5,104 fourth class postmasters were appointed, while the number appointed during the first two months of the present administration only reached 3,894, of which 2,685 were made to fill vacancies caused by resignation and death. So you see only 1,209 republicans have been removed, against 3,496 democrats removed by Clarkson in the same period. Brother Maxwell may largely increase his speed in making removals without offending any good democrat. The record of Presidential postmasters appointed during the same periods stands Harrison 264, Cleveland 155.

The Johnstown Democrat

is booming A. B. Farquhar of York, Pa., for the democratic nomination for Governor next year. Mr. Farquhar is a very busy man and insists that he could not possibly give the time to the work of the canvass. But this refusal does not seem to deter the editor from pressing his name vigorously. Mr. Farquhar is one of the largest agricultural implement manufacturer to be found and in a work of his own publication he has shown the fallacy of the present system of tariff taxation. His nomination would call out the most enthusiastic support from the agricultural sections, and they seem to hold the balance of power in this great commonwealth.

The President and the Office-Seekers.

From morning until one o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Cleveland stands at his desk, for he does not encourage continued conversation by sitting down, and receives the office-beggars, and their supporters. Senators and Representatives are among his most constant callers and most importunate claimants. Some of these public men, who are supposed to be selected to perform the duties of statesmanship, are daily visitors at the White House. They apparently regard the President as an almoner for their constituents, and as bound to devote himself to their political interests. Therefore they insist that he shall give them all his time listening to their appeals for patronage, and taking part in their struggles for ascendency in their States and districts. Three-fourths of the President's visitors are applicants for subordinate positions, and compel the President to appear to take an interest in matters which he ought not to consider. It has been stated that he tries not to remember what is said to him, and he certainly will never think of many an applicant or his petition after the first audience is over.

After one o'clock the White House is closed to visitors, and the President's intention is to work at the tasks that are demanding attention, and to consider the correspondence which is piling up ominously. But the office-seeker does not leave him a quiet hour. During the afternoon and evening men of importance send him their cards, and would be deeply offended if they were not received to talk about post-offices, consulates, and other less important matters. Even the cabinet meetings are partly devoted to the consideration of patronage, and if the President secures an hour alone during the working day he considers himself fortunate.

This is an outrage on the President and the country, but appeals addressed to the patriotism or self respect or common humanity of the patronage-beggars are useless. They will not relent. They insist on wearing out the President and the members of the cabinet, and in compelling the postponement of the public business to their greed for place. The only remedy lies in the President's hands. He ought not to listen to a single applicant or to a word from a public man in behalf of any single applicant or to a word from a public man in behalf of any office-seeker unless he invites the conference. Every application should be made in writing. The rule should be inflexible. Then, if a removal is to be made for cause, and the President is in doubt on the papers submitted, he may invite a fuller explanation. But no one, no matter what may be his position or influence, should be permitted to intrude upon him. The present condition of things is not only undignified, it is disgraceful.—Harper's Weekly.

HOLIDAY LAW.

Senate bill No. 168 designating days and half days to be observed as legal holidays in Pennsylvania, has passed first reading in the house at Harrisburg. The holidays named are January 1st, February 22d, Good Friday, May 30th, July 4th, first Monday in September, election day in November, Thanksgiving Day, and the 25th of December. The half holidays are every Saturday after 12 o'clock noon.

It is provided that whenever the 1st of January, 22d of February, 4th of July or 25th of December shall fall on Sunday, the day following shall be a legal holiday, but when May 30th falls on Sunday the preceding Saturday shall be a legal holiday.

Susquehanna Synod.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Susquehanna synod of the Evangelical Lutheran church at Montgomery last week. This synod was organized Nov. 5, 1867, with Rev. A. R. Horne, chairman, and Rev E. J. Wolf, secretary, having previously existed as the Susquehanna, which had been established Jan. 15, 1845. It consisted then of but five ministers, viz: George Parsons, Eli Swartz, Chas. Witmer, Henry Ziegler, and John Kohler. The form of incorporation was presented to the court of Northumberland county and passed Nov. 5, 1868. Since the organization of the synod the communicant membership has increased from 5,000 to 9,572 at last meeting. The number of Sunday school scholars has increased from 3,648 to 10,925. The amount raised for benevolence during the life of the synod was $108,015.76; contributions for beneficiary education in the same period, $17,398.16; by the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society. $12,221.13; contributed by Sunday schools for support of the schools and benevolence, $411,202.21; expended for local purposes, including the building of churches and parsonages, and the support of the ministry, $920,993.77 or an aggregate amounting to the handsome total of $1,126,831.74.

MRS. CARRIE BOUTON GAINED IN FLESH 68 LBS. TO 121 1-2 LBS. BY THE USE OF A SIMPLE REMEDY.

MEN AND WOMEN INTERESTED.

"It is astonishing," said one of our physicians the other evening, "how many of the ordinary diseases people suffer from come from the one cause—excess of uric acid in the blood. To discover a medicine that would dissolve this acid has puzzled thousands of the best men of the medical profession, until Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., produced what is known the world over as Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The great value we place in Favorite Remedy comes from the fact that it is the only medicine that will effectually dissolve this acid thus curing rheumatism, dyspepsia, kidney, liver and urinary troubles and the sicknesses women suffer from. These and many more troubles all come from the one cause, as I said before, this death dealing uric acid."

Perhaps there has been no one person in Wyoming Co., Pa., that has suffered more than Mrs. Carrie Bouton, formerly of Schottville, but now of Harvey's Lake, Luzerne Co. Mrs. Bouton, in relating her restoration to health, said: "From a growing girl I suffered from female trouble or weakness peculiar to my sex. Several physicians prescribed for me but I found no relief. I was reduced in flesh down to 68 pounds. By accident I heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and determined to try it, and to my great joy I began to realize that I had found a medicine that was doing me good. I think I had used five bottles when I found that I weighed 121½ pounds and was better in health than I ever was before.

Inquiry among Mrs. Bouton's neighbors shows that she states nothing but the facts in regard to her case. Many other instances of the kind are widely talked of in Scottsville, Tunkhannock, Wilkesbarre and other places where Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has effected many cures after physicians had given up hope.

"But," says one of our prominent druggists, "Favorite Remedy is equally efficacious in other diseases, as talks with people I have sold Favorite Remedy to affirm. To my knowledge right in our town Favorite Remedy has cured people suffering from rheumatism, dyspepsia, kidney, liver and urinary troubles."

Since the publication in one of the New York medical journals of the case of Mr. E. P. Tayer, of East Nassau, N. Y., Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has been increasing in sale. Mr. Tayer had suffered for fifteen years with inflammatory rheumatism. His case was practically abandoned by his physicians. Favorite Remedy was brought to his notice and in less than three months after its use he was a well man.

In commenting on this case Dr. W. H. Morse, of New York City, says: The great good in Favorite Remedy lies in its power to dissolve this deadly uric acid. In cases of dyspepsia, eczema, scrofula or any urinary diseases I have never known it to fail, when taken according to directions. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is not only used by physicians now but can be found on sale by every medicine dealer.— Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times.

ONE WAY OF PROPOSING

Over the balusters bends a face,
  Daringly sweet and beguiling;
Somebody stands in careless grace
  And watches the picture, smiling.

Tired and sleepy, with drooping head,
  I wonder why she lingers,
And when all the good-nights are said,
  Why somebody holds her fingers.

Holds her fingers and draws her down,
  Suddenly growing bolder,
Till her loose hair drops its masses brown
  Like a mantle over his shoulder.

Over the baluster soft hands fair
  Brush his cheeks like a feather;
Bright brown tresses and dusky hair
  Meet and mingle together.

There's a question asked, there's a swift caress;
  She has flown like a bird from the hallway:
But over the balusters drops a "Yes,"
  That shall brighten the world for him always.

CURED OF JEALOUSY.

Mr. Andrew Frosty chanced to reside in one of a long, straight row of houses, no one of which bore any special mark on its front by which it could be distinguished from another. Each had seven steps and a portico.

Tack on another item. Mr. Frosty was terribly jealous of his wife. Now, it is an awful thing for a man to be jealous of his wife at all, with or without reason. When man or wife falls into such a habit as that, they may as well draw their cotton caps over their eyes and say good-night to the world. Living is no sort of an object to them.

But whether Mr. Frosty had any reason to be jealous of his wife is not what we are going to settle. And yet we never thought he could have; for a more amiable wife than she made him it would be hard to find. Mrs. Frosty was young and beautiful, and her manners were very taking. It may be that these were Mr. Frosty's reasons for his jealousy; but if so, why didn't he marry a plainer woman?

Not many doors off and in the same row of dwellings lived Colonel Sawyer, who rather prided himself on being esteemed a gentleman. Without assuming to be what is popularly termed a ladies' man, he nevertheless was extremely particular in his carriage toward them, aiming always to impress them with a sense of his perfect purity, chivalry and truth. No one in the neighborhood ever suspected him of being capable of insulting any one—least of all a lady. Mothers held him up to their sprouting sons as an example of the lofty and true. And fathers spoke of him to their daughters, and hoped that if they ever thought of marriage they would be satisfied with nothing less than a character like him.

Coming home musingly and with his head bent one evening, the colonel thought no such accident was possible that he should mistake his own house, especially as he had been in and out that way so many times. Perhaps the very fact that he felt such a confidence was the greater reason why he should make a mistake at all. But as he was very much occupied with his reflections, he abandoned himself entirely to what he knew of the way home, and thought he should reach there all in good time. The consequence was that he quietly slipped himself in through Mr. Frosty's front door, hung up his hat and coat in the hall, and started for the dining-room.

As all the houses in the row were so much alike on the outside, their internal arrangements were pretty much on the same pattern. Mr. Frosty's hall seemed like his own, and the dining-room door opened where his did.

The instant he opened the door he began to awaken to his error. The table was spread in the middle of the room, and Mrs. Frosty sat near the grate reading.

"Ah!" he exclaimed, bowing and scraping confusedly. "I beg pardon! Really, Mrs. Frosty, I beg pardon!"

In a moment the astonished lady was on her feet, her face flushed with the natural excitement of so unlooked-for a visit. She knew not what to say.

"This is a ludicrous mistake, I declare, Mrs. Frosty," said the colonel. "Here I am invading your house, when I thought I was safe and snug in my own! This comes of these houses wearing such similar faces. But it is my first mistake, and I hope you'll excuse me."

Mrs. Frosty comprehended instantly, and laughed heartily.

"I may get caught so myself, you know," she said, "and we are always grateful for a call from you, Colonel Sawyer. Now you are here, and dinner will soon be on the table, why don't you sit down with us? I am expecting my husband every minute."

The colonel began to thank her and excuse himself on account of urgent engagements for the evening, but while he was doing so the front door was heard to open.

"There!" said his wife, my husband is coming now. You'll not be detained any longer than you would at home. Come, I think you'd better stay."

Along came Frosty through the hall, and his sour face would have turned sweet milk in a twinkling. The instant he caught the sound of a male voice in the dining-room his old suspicions began to flame up again. As soon as he could creep along as far as the door, in his stealthy way and look in through the crevice and see who was there, his rage burst all bounds and made him a temporary madman. Colonel Sawyer and his wife were in the room alone! That was quite enough!

"Now, what does this mean, sir?" shouted the enraged husband, dashing up before the thunderstruck colonel. "This is just what I've been expecting for a long time! I knew there was some mischief like this afoot. What are you doing in my house? Tell me, sir—or march yourself out sooner than you came in!"

The colonel had got over his astonishment enough to commence a calm explanation, when Mrs. Frosty, bursting into tears, threw herself before her angry husband and implored him to be silent, for it was a trifling mistake, and Colonel Sawyer would immediately explain it all. But the enraged man would hear nothing.

"Leave the room!" he exclaimed to his wife. "I'll hear nothing from you! I've had disgrace enough brought on me already. Leave the room!"

Mortified and in tears, she passed out to brood over her misery and mortification alone. Colonel Sawyer essayed to begin, though it was exceedingly hard work, and he could accomplish nothing but with almost superhuman effort.

"I mistook the house, sir, that is all," said he. "My intentions were perfectly honorable, and out of this house, sir, you shall not call them in question without being held personally responsible. I am quite ready to leave the place, I assure you."

He began to do so.

"That is very well to say," replied the jealous husband. "I should advise you for the future, however, to be a little careful before you go into other persons' houses, and see if your own number extends the whole length of the street!"

Colonel Sawyer withdrew, resolved to have no future words with such a creature. He saw that he was beside himself with jealousy, and he knew that speech would be wasted on him.

Perhaps it was a couple of months after this that a party of gentlemen lingered rather late at a luncheon at a tavern, and forgot that it was fairly four o'clock in the afternoon, until they found it had long ago struck six. They were all jolly fellows; their eyes were flashing and their cheeks were getting rosy. The luncheon must have put them in the best of spirits—or, rather, the best of spirits in them. Among them was Mr. Andrew Frosty.

If there was any one of them particularly "mellow," it was but fair to say it was Frosty. He had evidently improved his opportunities during luncheon. Going out into the bracing air after such a banquet, Mr. Frosty began to feel the effects very sensibly. By hook and by crook he finally sailed round to the street in which his domicile stood, pushing along till he thought he had got about where he ought to live, and went up the steps. After hanging up his great-coat and hat in the hall, he stepped along to the door of the dining-room and opened it. Who should suddenly appear to him, as he looked around the room, but Colonel Sawyer's wife? Frosty rubbed his eyes, stammered, made half a bow, felt wholly lost, and finally gave it up.

"I declare!" he exclaimed, looking blanker than the wall, "I've mistaken the house!"

"Oh, no, my dear sir," said Colonel Sawyer, immediately rising and going up to him, "you have done no such thing; you know you have not! You have only stolen in here to bring disgrace upon my family. I've been suspecting this for a long time, and now, sir, I'll just walk out myself with you, and be at the trouble of finding your own house for you."

Upon this the colonel put on his coat and hat, and insisted on accompanying Mr. Frosty home. Not a syllable of explanation would he listen to.

"Oh, no, no!" he would say whenever Frosty began to apologize. "I understand it all well enough. I see how it is. It's all very well to say you've lost the way into my house, but I should for the future advise you before going into other persons' houses to just look and see if your own number runs the length of the street."

Just the language Frosty had before used to him and just what sealed his lips. Frosty was floored completely. But that was not the best of it. The colonel insisted on going home with him and going in; and he offered his services in such a pleasant, yet persistent way that Frosty could not have shaken him off even if he was not himself rendered submissive by reason of his own mortification. The colonel, therefore, went in and told Mrs. Frosty about it, which so thoroughly pleased that amiable lady that, in view of previous circumstances she set up a resistless laugh in the face of her humbled lord, in the midst of which his very polite escort took occasion to quietly withdraw. But Frosty was thoroughly cured of his jealousy, for he admitted that it was quite possible for a respectable man to mistake even the number of his own door.

Only Comparative Poverty.

"There is very little genuine poverty in America," said Judge A. W. Wilder, recently. "Our poverty is rather comparative than real. We have men with incomes of one hundred thousand dollars a year and more. Beside these colossal fortunes the man who supports a family on nine dollars a week appears poor indeed. And yet a man may support a family very comfortably on nine dollars a week if he will set properly about it. They may have snug and cheerful rooms, comfortable clothing, and plenty of healthful food. The great trouble in this country is that men acquire luxurious habits before they are able to indulge them. The man who earns but one dollar and a half a day must have his toddy and his cigar; must patronize the barber and the street cars as though he earned five times that sum. His wife and children must dress as expensively as those of men with twice his income, and the result is that instead of being happy and independent, he is ever between the devil of pride and the deep sea of debt.

"All Americans expect to be rich some day—some fortunate turn of the tide is to bring their long-delayed ship to port—and they go on living beyond their means in anticipation of that 'good time' which is always coming, but seldom arrives. I am not theorizing; I have lived on nine dollars a week and supported a family. We were just as comfortable then as we are now. We were just as rich, for we had everything we actually needed and paid cash for it."

SHE WAS FIRM.

For Prudential Considerations She Preferred to Wait.

Miss Mabel McQuinney had said "Yes."

Softly and in a whisper she had uttered the word, but Victor Spoonamore had heard it.

And Victor was wildly, madly, deliriously happy.

The moon went behind a friendly cloud for a moment.

During which moment the bold, ardent youth embraced an opportunity and—but the moon has come out again. Let us proceed with the narration of the plain, unadorned facts.

Up and down the broad South Side boulevard they strolled, says the Chicago Tribune, heedless of the flight of time. Her little hand rested in the hollow of his arm. Being a young man possessed of more than a thimbleful of brains, he knew better than to grab her elbow, after the fashion prevalent in Bridgeport and Kalamakosh, and yank her along the sidewalk like a frugal husband on a small salary endeavoring to steer a reluctant wife past an auction room.

"It only remains now, Mabel," he pleaded, "for you to name the day. Make it early, please."

Miss Mabel proceeded to temporize.

"What will your family say when they hear of this?" she asked.

"The family will be delighted. I fancy nobody will be greatly astonished, but if your people can stand it mine can. It's our own affair, anyhow. It wouldn't make any difference what the family thinks."

"It's an old family, isn't it?"

"We can trace our ancestry back hundreds of years," said the young man, proudly. "There was a Spoennemower in Shakespeare's time. A Spoonlemure was an officer at the court of King George III. The Spoonamores came to this country in 1817, and many of them have filled positions of honor and trust in Virginia and New England for the last seventy-five years. It was a Spoonamore that officiated at the laying of the corner-stone of the Boston State House. There were Spoonamores in the diplomatic service in President Madison's time. There were plenty of them in both armies during the war of the rebellion. One was a Brigadier General. A New Jersey Spoonamore designed the house you and I will live in, Mabel—a large, stately building on Prairie avenue, with seventeen rooms and all the modern conveniences."

"You have reason to be proud of your people, Victor. Don't you hold family reunions sometimes?"

"Once in awhile."

"There must be a great many of you."

"Hundreds, Mabel—hundreds."

"Are there any other representatives of the family in Chicago besides you?" she asked after a moment's silence.

"None that I know of," he answered.

"That settles it, Victor," exclaimed the young woman sadly but with iron firmness. "We shall not be married until the World's Fair is over!"

Business Man—Yep.

"And work it yourself?"

"Yep."

"Well, sir, I am introducing a new form of typewriter. It writes script instead of Roman letters—looks just like ordinary writing."

"What if it does?"

"One of the letters in it is a u with a dot in the middle, so if you don't know whether a word like receive is is spelled ei or ie."——

HATS OFF TO THE FAIR.

THE GREAT BUILDING USED FOR THE DEDICATORY CEREMONIES.

THE MOST GLORIOUS SUCCESS.

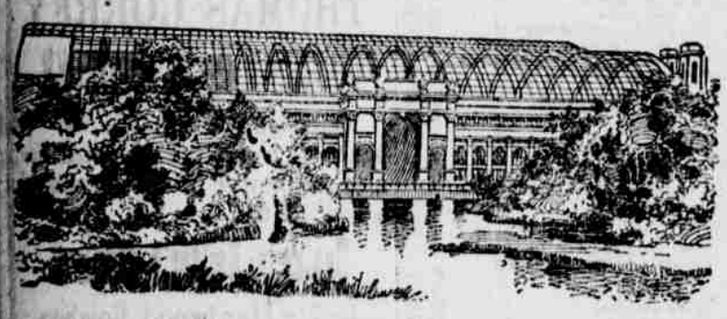
BIRDSEYE VIEW OF THE EXPOSITION GROUNDS.

Four hundred years after the day on which Columbus first saw land in the New World—to wit, on Oct. 21, 1892—at least 125,000 people assembled in the great hall of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building at Chicago and the imposing ceremonies of national and official dedication took place. It was indeed a memorable day, the proudest in the history of Chicago. It was preceded by an introductory day of street parades and followed by a day of festivities and rejoicing.

The audience itself was historic. President and cabinet, members of the supreme court and of both houses of congress, governors, orators, generals and statesmen, distinguished foreigners of various ranks and eminent men and women of our own land were the central figures. In the audience were people of almost every race on earth, especially from our own 3,500,000 square miles of territory. There was indeed a union of states, hearts and hands, an ideally perfect representation of the greatest republic, the greatest single nation the world has ever seen.

The orators of the occasion—the genial Chauncey M. Depew to deliver the Columbian oration, the venerable and eloquent William C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, to give the dedicatory oration and trace the upbuilding of the nation in which his own family has held so distinguished a place for more than a century. Poetry will lend its aid, music of the grandest sort enlivened the occasion, and art in its highest development added its ineffable charm. The rendition of appropriate selections from Haydn, Handel and Beethoven by masters in their art, the songs for the occasion were most fitting, and the chorus consisted of a galaxy of noted artists.

All this was but preliminary, however, to the actual opening of the fair, which took place on Monday, May 1, 1893. The president of the United States pressed an electric button which started up the big engines in Machinery Hall, and the Fair was a thing of the present. There are over 400 buildings in the Park, all belonging to the World's Fair, many of them being erected by the different states and by foreign nations. We shall give illustrated sketches of the fair from time to time as it progresses.



MANUFACTURES BUILDING.

The building for the department of manufactures and Liberal Arts is the largest in the world, and yet harmony and beauty have not been sacrificed to size, for the architect, Mr. George B. Post, has succeeded in combining the three so as to produce the finest effects of grandeur. It will be the feature of the exposition, as the Eiffel tower was that at Paris in 1889. The bare statement of the geometrical and commercial figures reads like a romance in material construction. One must travel within a few rods of a mile to go around it.

It covers 30½ acres, the area of many a valuable New England farm, and including galleries has forty-four acres of floor area. To cover that floor with average carpet would cost $201,849, and putting down the carpet would cost 0,000.

One million men could stand on the floor space with ease, and 300,000 could be seated. The Roman Coliseum when crowded held but 80,000. Under the roof of 1,000 cottages, 25 by 50 feet each, could be placed, and the area equals that of four average city blocks. There are 7,000,000 feet of lumber in the floor, and five carloads of nails were used in fastening it down. In the entire structure are 17,000,000 feet of lumber, 12,000,000 pounds of steel and 2,000,000 pounds of iron, the metal aggregating twice as much as was used in the Brooklyn bridge. There are eleven acres of skylight, in which are forty carloads of glass. No man need hope to realize the grandeur of such a building at a view. Like Niagara and Yosemite, it stuns the imagination and must be studied for many days.

The building is a rectangle, 1,687 feet long and 787 feet wide, fronting the lake, with only lawns and promenades between. At each corner of the main building are pavilions forming great pavilioned entrances, which are designed in harmony with the great portals. The exteriors of these pavilions are richly decorated with sculpture and rural paintings. The long facades of the great hall surrounding the building are composed of a series of arches filled with immense glass windows. The lower portion of these arches, up to the level of the gallery floor and 25 feet in depth, is open to the outside, thus forming a covered loggia, which forms an open promenade for the public, and will prove a very interesting feature, particularly on the east side, where it faces the lake. It is intended to locate here a number of cafes, where the great crowds can loiter at their ease and enjoy the breezes and cool shadows of the afternoon. Within the building a gallery 50 feet wide extends around all four sides, and projecting from this are 86 smaller galleries 12 feet wide, from which visitors may survey the vast array of exhibits and the busy scene below. The galleries are approached upon the main floor by 30 great staircases, the flights of which are 12 feet wide each. Columbia avenue, 50 feet wide, extends through the mammoth building longitudinally, and an avenue of like width crosses it at right angles at the center.

BARGE OF STATE.

In the center of the building is the enormous hall, 1,275 feet 10 inches long by 380 feet wide, free from columns, and covered by a roof formed by great steel trusses, which rise to a height of 210 feet above the floor. This space is lighted by clearstory windows and by the skylight area of the roof covering. Around this hall, inclosing it on every side, is the exterior building, over 200 feet wide. This consists of a middle nave, 107 feet 9 inches wide and 115 feet high, with an aisle on each side. The aisle next the main hall is 52 feet 3 inches wide, and the aisle on the outer side of the building 46 feet wide. Each aisle has a gallery floor, 25 feet above the main floor. The proportion of skylight to roof is 50 per cent., and it is intended in this, and in all the main buildings, to put curtains under the skylights so as to screen the interior from the sun during very hot weather. Ventilation is provided for by louvres in the sides of the clearstory roof.

Last, but far from least, and perhaps most wonderful in the way of architectural success, are the acoustics, which are claimed to be so good that every person in the hall will be able to hear the orators. The total cost of the building is put at $1,500,000. Of the wonders of the roof of tensile steel and glass and the great supporting trusses there is not space to treat. Such is the wonderful building in which the dedication ceremonies are to be held.

WOMAN'S SPLENDID WORK.

It is a matter of pride as well as congratulation that although work on the exposition was begun at least a year too late, yet such energy and ability has been shown that the most important buildings will be complete even by the day of dedication and every one before the day of formal opening. It is matter of especial gratification that the Woman's building is so far completed and that the board of lady managers have already done so much to make their part of the exposition one of its most attractive features.

The ladies' board was informed, in response to its invitation to the women of China to participate in the exposition, that China would be glad to make a fine exhibit if the wives of some of the prominent men be allowed to accompany the exhibit, in order to study American civilization. Mrs. Palmer went to work at once upon this point, and has just received from the acting secretary of state at Washington a copy of a joint resolution of congress, making provision for the interest of Chinese exhibitors and their Chinese agents. Unusual pains will be taken to secure a full display of everything Chinese which is of special interest to women, and though little can be expected in the line of productions by Chinese women, yet that little will be of great interest.

STATUE OF ART.
[As seen in the atelier.]

This, however, is at best but a matter of curiosity; the work of American women will make an exposition in itself. It appears that 284 inventions have been patented by the women of Illinois alone, and descriptions, drawings and, so far as possible, models of these will be shown in the Illinois building. As an instance, Mrs. M. A. Hawley, of Dixon, has obtained a patent on a very ingenious device for ridding poultry of parasites. The little machine is so simple that the chief of the patent office said, "I wonder it was not invented long ago," and yet it is so complete and practical that all raisers of poultry find it invaluable.

The lady managers are sometimes puzzled to know how to classify or exhibit their many unusual discoverics in the line of woman's work. For example, a South Carolina girl has been found who runs the engine for her father's cotton mill. A South Bend (Ind.) woman wishes to make an American table a feature of the World's fair. The suggestion is to have the table itself, its linen, its appointments and food wholly of American production.

Another gratifying surprise is the great number of curious old relics, fine pieces of lace and embroidery, rare old china and articles of similar interest owned by ladies in various parts of the country. About many of those mentioned and offered for exhibition there is sometimes a touch of the humorous, the poetic or the patriotic. For instance, one woman in Indiana has in her possession a Continental bill for ten dollars which Senator Wade Hampton's grandfather, an officer in the patriot army, paid to the lady's great-grandmother for some household work. Time and associations have made it worth more than its face in gold. Similarly a New York woman offers for exhibition a piece of Kensington embroidery executed by her great-grandmother at an art school in England in 1780. It is a hunting scene and is framed behind glass.

Miss Jennie Ryerson, immortalized by Helen Hunt Jackson's sketch of her as "The Little Lace Peddler," is collecting an exhibit of the "drawn work" of the Indian and Spanish women of the Pacific coast, and has already secured a marvelous variety. Mrs. Albright, lady manager for New Mexico, has been placed by the territorial board in complete charge of the woman's work from that territory. The designing, arrangements and ornamentation of the interior of the Wisconsin building are entirely the work of Wisconsin women artists. And, finally, Miss R. J. Barrett, of Ontario, has been appointed by the Canadian authorities to collect the first specimens of women's work in the Dominion and arrange them for the exposition.

Another extremely interesting feature, connected as yet with the woman's department, is a general presentment of the condition of the Indian tribes. Miss Sickels is now at Washington working, assisted to some extent by Mrs. Wanamaker, to get as large an exhibit as possible. With this will be connected a sort of Indian congress, of which Miss Sickels says: "In order that a full, representative congress may be secured, a committee has been selected for the purpose of effectively facilitating the means by which the Indians may most ably represent themselves. This committee is composed of men and women connected with the different phases of the relations between the races—philanthropic, official (civil and military), scientific and literary, and is assisted by an advisory council of disinterested people residing in various parts of the United States, British America and Alaska."

THE WOMAN'S BUILDING.

THE MAGNIFICENT ART DISPLAY.

When the directors got fairly to work—and it was indeed late in the day—there was many a prophet of failure. From many persons were heard such expressions as "They can't do it in time. It's impossible." But they have done it, even in advance of the time in many instances. Most of the main buildings are so near done that even now the visitor can realize their fitness, and in no case more than in that of the Fine Arts building. It is an admirable type of the refined classical architecture of Grecian-Ionic design, and in the fewest possible words it is thus described: Dimensions, 320 by 500 feet. Two annexes, each 120 by 200 feet. Total floor area, 5.1 acres. Total wall area for picture hanging, 145,852 square feet. The nave and transept—which intersect the building north, south, east and west—are 100 feet wide by 70 feet high. Height of dome, 125 feet. Diameter of dome, 60 feet. Cost of building, $670,000. Architect, P. B. Atwood, designer in chief of the construction department of the exposition. Material — 13,000,000 brick, 1,359,000 pounds of structural iron, 3,000,000 feet of lumber. This building is necessarily fireproof, although the construction is designed to be temporary. The walls are brick; the roof, floors and galleries are of iron.

It stands in the northern part of the park, the south front facing the lagoon. The main building is entered by four great portals, richly ornamented with architectural sculpture. Galleries forty feet in width extend entirely around the place, constituting a continuous promenade. The adjacent grounds are thick set with artistic figures, and above all on the summit of the dome is the colossal figure of Winged Victory. The frieze of the exterior walls and the pediments of the principal entrances are ornamented with sculptures and portraits in bas-relief of old ancient artists, the whole presenting an effect which only an artist both in words and sculpture could describe. It is indeed an art palace and all its surroundings are in keeping.

In addition to the adornments special to each building there are scattered through the park and in the main halls forty-eight sculptural groups and 103 distinct figures, all of heroic size and the work of the sculptors Daniel C. French, Rohl-Smith, Martiny, Bitter, John Boyle, Larado Taft, Robert Kraus, M. A. Waagen and Miss Rideout. These figures and groups are placed as follows: Franklin in Electricity building; Republic in the Basin; Horticulture building, ten figures; Transportation building, sixteen figures and eight groups; Administration building, thirty-six figures and twenty groups; Machinery hall, fifteen figures (these are duplicated several times); Agricultural building, six groups; Manufactures building, sixteen sculptural eagles sixteen feet high and twenty-one feet across the wings. There are two cattle groups in the colonnade between the Agriculture and Machinery buildings.

Several of these figures and groups deserve more description than can be given here, and those completed, as well as the designs for those yet in making, have received the highest praise. Among them are Sculptor Mead's large group on the Agricultural building and his minor arts groups; the groups representing Industry, Commerce and Abundance; the statue of Franklin and the statue of the Republic. The Franklin, by Rohl-Smith, is sixteen feet high, cost $3,000, and stands in the main entrance of the Electricity building. The Republic, by Daniel C. French, is sixty feet high and stands on a pedestal forty feet high at the entrance to the Basin from Lake Michigan. The cost of the statue when completed will be $25,000.

The lady sculptor, Miss Rideout, is making the free groups which will adorn the plinths on top of the Woman's building. Mr. Bitter has nearly completed the nine large groups for the Administration building. The famous "Signs of the Zodiac" are now in the cast and will soon be in place. In the great palace of art the space is assigned to the nations as follows: The United States, 34,636 square feet; France, 33,393; Germany, 20,400; Great Britain, 20,395; Italy, 12,410; Belgium, 12,318; Austria, 11,564; Holland, 9,837; Norway, 3,462; Spain, 7,807; Russia, 7,725; Sweden, 7,005; Denmark, 3,900; Japan, 2,919; Canada, 2,895; Mexico, 1,500.

Special efforts are being employed to bring to light the work of America's earliest artists, such as Copley, Stuart, Allston, Sargent, West, Alexander, Newton, Peale, Chester, Harding, Trumbull, Leslie, Morse, Elliott and others.

STATUE OF COMMERCE.

These are, West and Trumbull excepted, known but little abroad, and even in the United States they are not generally appreciated as they deserve. The French and American sections will be connected by a gallery in which the finest French paintings owned in this country, loaned for the purpose, will be exhibited. The American paintings will be so arranged as to afford a retrospective exhibition from the Colonial period to the present.

HOW THE WORK HAS PROGRESSED.

When the first move was made 160 men were in charge of the Columbian exposition—115 for the government and 45 for all others. It is scarcely necessary to add that little or nothing was done for quite awhile and a great deal of valuable time was wasted. This large body concentrated itself, so to speak, about one-half, and a beginning was made. Later the number was reduced to eight on a side, and finally most of the responsibility was devolved on four, with the energetic H. N. Higinbotham at their head, and then work went forward with a hum.

The buildings are practically complete. The last of the iron work on the great Machinery hall was placed early in September, and the principal carpentry work is in finishing the two spires. The exterior covering is nearly all finished on the north front of the main building. The annex is practically finished exteriorly and is being lathed. The final estimate of the Edgemoor Bridge company for the steel work on the Manufactures building shows that in the roof of the central hall there have been placed 12,908,775 pounds of steel, costing $529,259.77.

The example has stimulated the men in charge of the state buildings, and every one will be completed in good time. The visitors present on the first day will look on a completed exposition. When the electric circuit is closed which shall start the ponderous machinery going, it will be so far as possible a show complete and entire. The state buildings now inclosed and roofed, with the rough work done and interior finishing progressing, are Illinois, Kansas, West Virginia, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Iowa, Maine, Arkansas, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Montana, Maryland and Delaware.

Seventy buildings are now in process of construction on the exposition grounds, as follows: Main exposition buildings—Administration, Agriculture and annex, Dairy, Electricity, Fisheries, Forestry, Fine Arts and annexes, Horticulture, Manufactures, Mines, Machinery, Transportation and annex, Woman's—thirteen.

Minor exposition buildings—Battleship, boiler house, casino, cleansing works, cold storage house, colonnade, freight sheds (three), fuel, oil tanks, greenhouse, Hyde Park police station, life saving station, music hall, office of grounds and buildings, peristyle, photographic building, pumphouse, Woodlawn police station—seventeen.

The state and foreign buildings number twenty-eight, and the concession or special buildings are: Baker's cocoa, German village, Libby glass works, Moorish palace, New England clam bake, natatorium, panorama of Burmese Alps, panorama of the volcano of Kilauea, Puck, sliding railway, White Star line—eleven.

Other construction work carried on by the Exposition company includes the intramural railway, bridges, electric subways, fountains, obelisk, etc.

Of course the finances of such a big enterprise will be of interest to the American people. Down to Sept. 1 the total receipts from all sources were $10,401,045, of which Chicago had paid $5,003,726 and $5,038,932 had been paid on current installments of stock subscriptions. The government's contribution was not counted on as yet, and only $68,500 had been received in souvenir coins. Of the total $8,743,259 had been paid out, leaving a cash balance of $1,657,785. It is painful to find the following item at the close of the report:

"Six hundred and forty-eight accidents had occurred up to the time of the completion of the report, divided as follows, as to the extent of injuries: Killed, 14; fatally injured, 2; seriously injured, 25; slightly injured, 607. Of this number only one was a visitor."

At the same date foreign governments had expended $124,900. England, of course, leads with an expenditure of $11,785. The Argentine Republic, Uruguay and Paraguay have together expended $19,670. Neither France nor Spain has yet expended any sum worth mentioning, but will do so, of course, before the exposition opens. Exclusive of work done by foreigners, the total paid on buildings to Sept. 1 was $4,381,790.94.

PRESENT APPEARANCE OF THE GROUNDS.

Auditor Ackerman having published his report that $8,743,259 had been spent down to Sept. 1, the American people naturally want to know what they have to show for their money.

The answer is based on the unanimous testimony of all visitors that in extent, beauty, artistic effect and general convenience Jackson park is fast becoming a wonder, and in 1893 will be the most complete and agreeable exposition site the world has ever seen.

And that the people are interested in the work is shown by the fact that $99,119 have already been received in entrance fees from those anxious to look on the grounds even in their uncompleted state. Chicago does not forget to add with proper local pride, and as a delicate argument on a much discussed point, that most of this was paid by visitors who entered on Sunday.

ABUNDANCE.

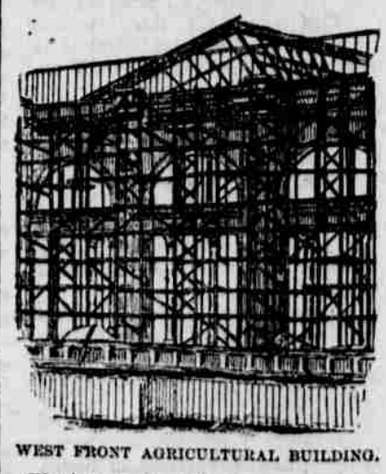
nearly all of them from that city, and that they passed the day in a very peaceable and enjoyable manner.

The general result of the money expended is—a great park graded, drained and beautified in the finest style of landscape art, sand ridges and swamps replaced by lawns, gardens and shrubbery; a wooded island, romantic lagoons, and one of the handsomest beach promenades in the world, which will show during the summer evenings of

FRONT VIEW OF THE ART PALACE.

1893 a tableaux vivant of all nations. All this is but the general view. The specialties are the great buildings, art works and hundreds of minor attractions.

The Exposition company still has to construct its intramural railway, bridges, electric subway, fountains and many other works in the line of combining use and beauty. Among the minor affairs are the casino, battleship, colonnade, music hall, peristyle and others. It may be well to add that there are 2,346 employees on the pay roll, their wages averaging seventy-nine dollars per month. Enough has been done to strike visitors with astonishment even now and there yet remain six months for active work.



WEST FRONT AGRICULTURAL BUILDING.

The latest map of Jackson park shows it to be indeed a wonder, and a glance at the course of the so called Midway plaisance will show that a journey from one end of it to the other will be equivalent almost to a trip around the world. The visitor when he starts out may see a village of Dahomey, an Austrian village, a Chinese teahouse, a Morocco exhibit, a Roman house, an Algerian village, a street in Cairo, a Moorish palace, a Turkish village, a panorama of the Burmese Alps, a German village, a Dutch settlement, a Japanese bazaar, a Venetian village and a large number of other attractions.

Bad Roads Injure Fruit.

Sluman S. Bailey, in his address before the Michigan Fruit Growers' association, has furnished another excellent argument for good roads. He shows how fruit growers lose heavily in damage to their produce by reason of jolting on heavy and uneven roads. Better roads—the very best roads—will put money in the pockets of fruit growers. This same thing is true of other classes of farmers.—Detroit Tribune.

Death of Rev. I. Irvine.

Rev. Isaiah Irvine, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Williamsport, died at his late residence, 1237 Erie avenue, at 3:35 o'clock last Sunday afternoon, of peritonitis, after an illness of a week's duration. A week previous Rev. Irvine occupied his pulpit, administering the sacrament of the Lord's supper, and seemed to be in usual health. At 4 o'clock the next morning he became ill. Later in the week it became necessary to perform an operation, from which he never rallied.

Rev. Irvine was 44 years of age, having been born in Fowlersville, Columbia county, in 1849. He is survived by a wife, but no children. Both his parents are still alive and reside in Fowlersville. He was pastor of the St. John's Lutheran church for the past two years, during which time he succeeded in uniting the congregation and meeting with good success. He was secretary of the Susquehanna Synod. At its session last week at Montgomery a telegram was handed the president signed by Rev. Irvine which read, "All is well." "Please read from II. Timothy, 4th chapter, 7th and 8th verses." The quotation was Paul's farewell words to Timothy.

The funeral services were held in St. John's church, Williamsport, Monday evening, conducted by Rev. Jacob Yutzy, of Selinsgrove, president of Susquehanna Synod, assisted by Rev. Anspach, of St. Paul's church. The remains were brought over Tuesday morning on the Pennsylvania railroad to Northumberland, where they were conveyed to the D. L. & W. railroad and taken to Berwick for interment.

Rev. Irvine was in attendance at the conference held at Espy a few weeks ago and gave a very interesting address.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The public schools will close Wednesday of next week. The final examinations are being held. The patrons of the schools should visit them and see whether good work is done. A good teacher will always welcome a visitor; and the poor teacher will be strengthened by the visitor's presence. Furthermore, it is not only the privilege but the duty of the patrons to see if the proper teacher is employed for instructing their children. If any complaints are to be made they should be made now before teachers are elected for another year. There is no better opportunity of judging what work has been done than in the final examinations—deportment as well as proficiency in studies can easily be discerned by the watchful visitors. The attendance in the schools during the past year has been much better than in any preceding year, and the teachers report more progress. Now that the year has about closed and soon preparations will be made for the new year, a list of prizes should be arranged and suggested to some member of the Board or to the principal, that announcement can be made in due time. In other places prizes are given at ever Commencement day. Who will be first to offer a prize in some branch of study. Each donor could select the particular branch of study they might desire.

CARLISLE APPOINTS INVESTIGATORS

The New York Custom House to be Examined Into.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Secretary Carlisle has appointed Charles S. Fairchild, ex-secretary of the treasury; Daniel Magone, of Ogdensburg, ex-collector of the port of New York, and General Poindexter Dunn, formerly a member of congress from Arkansas, but now a citizen of California, as a commission to investigate the numerous charges relative to the administration of customs in New York city.

The commission is given the widest practical scope in conducting the inquiry. It is understood that Mr. Fairchild will be chairman of the commission. They will begin their labors within a few days by examining all the papers on file containing charges and complaints. They are empowered to inquire into any further charges that may be made, and, in a word, to clear up all the allegations of fraud and mismanagement.

General Poindexter Dunn, one of the commissioners, was seen by a reporter last evening. He had not been appraised of his appointment, but was not surprised, as he had been informed of the purpose to place him on the commission. He says the duty of the commission will be not only to investigate existing abuses with a view to the correction thereof, but also to ascertain what reforms can be instituted in contemplation of the sweeping changes to be made in the tariff by the next congress; that the commissioners are to bear in mind that the existing system of protection is to be swept away and a tariff for revenue, with incidental protection, substituted; that they are to study the effect of this change and recommend methods of administration of the customs at New York to facilitate the proposed new tariff. The compensation of the commissioners is fixed at $10 per day, with an allowance of $5 per diem for expenses.

TEN PERSONS KILLED OUTRIGHT.

A Passenger Train Completely Wrecked on the Big Four.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 8.—The Big Four passenger train which left Chicago at 8:30 Saturday night in crossing the Wabash river bridge here yesterday morning got away from the engineer. The air brakes would not work. The front cars left the track after reaching the depot, tearing down the sheds on the east side of the track. The engine, baggage, mail and express cars were thrown off the track, hurled some distance and broken to pieces.

Michael Walsh, of Indianapolis, engineer, found under his engine. His head was split open and his body was terribly mangled.

Sterling McInnes, Urbana, Ill., fireman.

Thomas McMahon, Bellevue, O.

A. R. Chadwick, postal clerk, Shelbyville, Ind.

Jessie H. Long, postal clerk, Lebanon, Indiana.

E B. Myers, postal clerk, Walton, Indiana.

John Lennon, mail wagon driver, Lafayette, Indiana.

Charles Cahill, moulder, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Charles Myers, baggage handler, Lafayette, Indiana.

Had the engine left the track a minute sooner the entire train would have been thrown into the Wabash river. Owing to a sharp curve in the track on the west side of the river the air brakes could not be applied until near the bridge. When the engineer tried to apply the air the brakes would not work and the train dashed into the station. The injured have been taken to the hospital.

Several of the deck hands and deck passengers, who were eating breakfast at the time, were literally cooked alive and a large number received serious burns.

Still Another Cyclone in Arkansas.

FULTON, Ark., May 9.—A disastrous cyclone swept over a section of the country northeast of here. The forest trees in a swath three miles wide have been twisted off and uprooted. Houses and barns are scattered in all directions.

Five Tramps Killed.

DAYTON, O., May 6.—While the first section of a north-bound Cincinnatti, Hamilton and Dayton freight train was taking water near Tadmer this morning, the second section dashed into it, making a bad wreck. Of six tramps who were in one of the cars of the first section beating their way towards Lima, O., only one survives.

Treating Sick Headaches.

There are varieties of headaches produced by various causes, as overstudy, or exhaustion; or by a peculiar state of the system, as the throbbing pain in the head which precedes apoplexy, but these should be prescribed for by a physician, writes Elisabeth Robinson Scovil in the May Ladies' Home Journal. In many cases the cause of the headache is deep-seated and must be removed before permanent relief can be hoped for. Neuralgia in any part of the body implies that the nerves are starved and are crying out for food. This must be supplied before the pain will cease. There are, however, measures which can be tried to give temporary relief, and no one who has not suffered from the headache of neuralgia knows what this means to the victim. Camphor and chloral, rubbed together until they form a liquid, may be painted over the spot, or a menthol pencil used in the same manner. If these cannot be obtained the face should be bathed in very hot water and a mustard paste applied, taking care not to leave it on long enough to blister. A flannel wet with chloroform liniment may be tried, and a hot-water bag will sometimes ease the pain. A cup of hot tea followed by a teaspoonful of valerinate of ammonia may do good. A person subject to this form of headache should eat plenty of nourishing food, as fresh meat, all the cereals, vegetables, particularly beans and celery, and drink milk, hot or cold, and cocoa in preference to tea and coffee. These may be used as a stimulant in necessity, but not as a regular beverage. Friction of the whole body by rubbing is valuable and it should be kept warm in cold weather by suitable clothing, with flannel next the skin, especially at night.

The teeth should be examined by a dentist and properly attended to. If these measures fail a nerve tonic is necessary.

Bull's-Head Horse and Cattle Powder has been in use for years. Farmers prefer it to all others, and they get their money's worth as each package contains one pound. Sold by all dealers.

If it was really the rule in this country for the office to seek the man it would be a moving sight.

Do you lack faith and love health? Let us establish your faith and restore your health with DeWitt's Sarsaparilla. W. S. Rishton, Druggist. 10-14-1y.

A lady who was married to a very hard drinker tried, very naturally to induce him to reform, with no effect. She concluded to scare him, and when he came, loaded up as usual she put on the costume of a devil that she had worn at a masquerade ball, and as he opened the door she stepped out and said in a sepulchral voice: "Come with me—I am the devil." The result rather upset her, as her husband said: "Zat so? Shake ol' boy, I'm your brother-in law; I married your sister." She wisely concluded to let him alone for the future.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it for six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm. —Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Avenue Brooklyn.

The enormity of a leather trust is all the greater this year, when so many are likely to walk back from Chicago, not to speak of those who will have to walk if they want to get there.

Women Must Sleep.

If they only could sleep eight hours every night and one hour every day:—

Their freshness and beauty would continue to the end:—

Years would be added to their lives.

All derangements of the Uterus or Womb, Ovarian or kidney troubles, uterus tumors, spinal weakness, irregularity, indigestion, exhaustion, or "displacement," drives the nerves wild with excitement, and sleep is impossible.

THE BIG CITY ON THE SPREE.

Third in Population in Europe—How it is Laid Out and Built.

We of the western world are just beginning to realize that Berlin is the third city of Europe in population, high up in the list of the world's great capitals. The present city spreads over twenty-five square miles. The main channel of the Spree runs a little north of the center of Berlin, through a winding course across the town; and its branches have been banked up and connected into a system of serviceable canals, whose sides form shady promenades and busy thoroughfares. Until a few years ago Berlin grew with the slowness and decorum of an old-time European city; but within the last few decades it has spread with the rapidity and with all the modern airs of the newest American town.

The most striking contrast between the outward appearance of Berlin and that of American cities—never forgetting its military air—consists in the character of its houses and their style of ornament. Berlin is made of flat or apartment houses. This adds wonderfully to the appearance of the town, for they are massive, high and regular. In place of red brick there is a tone of sober grey. In America the taste of individuals is allowed full play, so that in the same square you will see buildings of a dozen different styles of architecture. In Berlin, partly from Old World habits of routine, partly from severe building inspection laws, and partly because they think it is good taste, great uniformity of style prevails. This may be a cause of monotony, but still the result is impressive and admirably in keeping with the military precision of everything one sees and hears. The Parisian, forgetful of the stucco which adorns his own great city, may indeed complain that the buildings are not of cut stone, as they seem, but brick cemented over and even adorned with caryatids of painted zinc, to support eaves, lintels and balconies. But one should not forget Berlin is new.

Berlin has over 1,600,000 inhabitants, and is still growing. The most noticeable thing about the streets of the suburbs is the immense building operations now going on. In whatever direction one goes on the outskirts, he is met by blocks of new apartment houses, in such number that it would seem new towns were springing up.

To the southwest of the city there is a new boulevard that makes one think of Chicago. It is 200 feet wide. It has one track of Belgian blocks, a dirt road for horseback riders, a macadamized road for carriages, and a steam railway—which makes no noise—side by side of each other. When this boulevard leaves Berlin it forgets to stop and placidly continues—not through fields of Indian corn, indeed—but through potato patches and fields of rye and tracts of pine and scrub. Yet whenever you look around you may see here and there great blocks of apartment houses built or going up. Only in this way can Berlin make room for its daily increasing population.

Signs of general education are more conspicuous here than in any other city of the world. I can say this plainly. Not only in every section of the city do you find great primary school buildings, but some quarters are positively imposing with the number and magnitude of higher schools. The chances for technical education are better here than in any of the great capitals. At Charlottenburg there is one boarding school where over 2,000 boys are given advanced instruction in the different arts and trades. In the city there are many Real Schules for the higher training of commercial and practical life.

All this educational character of the city marches hand-in-hand with the military character of the whole empire. Everything is intelligently and thoroughly ordered "from above." Everything is done "by highest command" or "by highest request"—a curious formula which I have known to provoke smiles when it was applied to a special performance of the ballet of Coppelia at the old opera house, on an occasion when the Emperor was to be present.

Whether the making of Berlin has resulted in something admirable or not, I am sure that its people and its ruler are determined that it shall stay what it is. For I have also known foreigners, with too free a use of their tongues, to leave Berlin "by highest request."—Corr. Philadelphia Press.

A Family Friend.

An old man was leading a thin old horse across the commons in the northern part of the city when a passer-by asked him where he was going, says the Detroit Free Press.

"I'm searching for a bit of green for the poor beast," he answered.

"I'd send him to the boneyard or the glue factory," said the other, contemptuously.

"Would you?" asked the old man in a trembling voice; "if he had been the best friend you had in the world and helped you to earn food for your family for nearly twenty-five years? If the children that's gone and the children that's livin' had played with their arms around his neck and their heads on his for a pillow when they had no other?

"Sir, he's carried us to mill and to meetin', an' praise God he shall die like a Christian, an' I'll bury him with these old hands. Nobody'll ever abuse old Bill, for if I goes afore him there are those as are paid to look after him."

"I beg your pardon," said the man who had accosted him, "there's a difference in people."

"Aye, and in horses, too," said the old man as he passed on with his four-footed friend.

Prohibition Item.

Intending Settler—There seems to be a great deal of drunkenness here.

Agent (frankly)—Yes, there is. The boys love their booze.

"Did you ever try local option?"

"I never did; old Kentucky whiskey is plenty strong enough for us, mister.

A Revolution In Eating

has been brought about by the introduction of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening. The discovery of this product, and the demonstration of its remarkable qualities, has attracted the widest interest. Hitherto the common shortening has been lard, or indifferent butter. Every one has probably suffered occasional discomfort from lard-cooked food; while it is well known that thousands are obliged to abstain entirely from everything of that kind. To such people, COTTOLENE is of peculiar value, widening as it does, the range of what may be eaten and enjoyed. COTTOLENE is a cooking marvel. It combines with the food—imparts to it a tempting color, a delicate flavor, and an appetizing crispness. No trace of greasiness remains to offend the taste, or disturb the digestion.

COTTOLENE is worthy of the careful notice of all those who value good food, of itself or for its hygienic properties.

FOR THE ANTIQUARIAN.

But Not a Profitable Country For Professional Foreigners.

To the educated young American who seeks to better his fortunes Peru is an impossible field of action. He can gain no foothold in the professions. In law, all examinations are held in Spanish. Should he pass, he would probably find that his knowledge was based on the wrong system, for in Peru the courts employ the Roman or Justinian code. His endeavor in medicine would be equally unsatisfactory. The doctors are all licensed by the Spanish authorities, who with jealous care see to it that no foreigners hang up a shingle. So that you can see that a young man would be far better off out of Peru than in it—that is, if he thinks of going down there from a speculative or business standpoint, particularly as the trip is a long and expensive one. But to the scientist and the antiquarian Peru offers a wide field for study, and study, too, of the most fascinating sort. Among the interesting remains that point to another and now vanished race, are the thousands and thousands of graves. Who made these old tombs and by whom they are filled are problems that offer the scientist material for reflection. In the graves are found pottery, bits of silver, copper and gold, implements of precious metals and specimens of weaving, showing that by whomsoever the work was done he or she must have lived in the midst of a primitive but well-developed civilization. The bodies in the graves are mummified by the belt of saltpeter which abounds on the Peruvian coast. Recently the remains of Pizarro were removed to a costly shrine in the cathedral, for the pious Limaens thought to highly honor the founder of their city. The bones were mounted and set together with springs, so as to present a life-like appearance. Pizarro, according to the custom of his time, had been buried in this soil impregnated with saltpeter. To-day, the traveler may look upon the relics of [illegible] and conqueror, mummified and preserved and life-like to a high degree, although three hundred and fifty years have vanished since the spirit fled.

Get Plenty of Sleep.

Early rising promotes cheerfulness of temper, opens up new capacities of enjoyment and channels of delight to which the sluggard must be insensible. It increases the sum of human existence by stealing from indolence hours that would else be utterly wasted, and, better still, unquestionably conduces to longevity. All long livers have been early risers. Now, the habit of retiring to bed at late hours will hardly admit of early rising, therefore the necessity of refraining from the one in order to secure the advantages of the other. From six to eight hours are generally held to be sufficient, and no doubt on the average are so.

Our sleep is regulated much by the season. In winter people lie longer on account, as they say, of its being too dark to get up early. There is some plausibility in the reason, but the system in cold and dark weather is more prone to sleep than in light and sunny times. Invalids need generally plenty of bed rest, but they should secure it by going early to bed. There is more health and strength to be found in the practice of seeing the sun rise than in looking at the other part of the day.

In Case of Illness.

It would be a great help to mothers and would save not only much needless anxiety but many a doctor's bill, and sometimes even a life, if the distinction between a slight and a serious ailment were more generally understood. Over-caution and not undercaution is apt to be the prevailing tendency. A child or young person complains of severe pain in the chest, and the mother at once fancies it is pneumonia; or if the trouble is in the bowels, peritonitis is the dreaded enemy, and so on. "Pain without fever," said a well-known physician, "may be very severe and may cause much suffering, but in acute attacks it is not dangerous. If you had this amount of pain that you complain of," he said to the patient who had hastily summoned him, "in any inflammatory disease, you would be in a raging fever; if you have no fever you need never worry." Most serious illnesses are preceded by a chill. This is a sympton that should never be disregarded, and it is always safe to put a child to bed and stop his food. Warmth and dieting will be found to be the best remedy for any ordinary indisposition, while for the beginning of serious trouble it is often the only thing that can be done until the disease declares itself.

The World's Food for One Day.

The average healthy man eats nearly two and a half pounds of solid food in a day. Some races eat much more than others, but against this we can set the smaller consumption of children and the delicate members of civilized communities. Now, as there are, according to the most careful computations, 1,497,000,000 human beings on the planet, we may conclude that 3,607,770,000 pounds, or about 1,610,612 tons of solid foods are eaten every day the world over. With regard to the drinking capacity of the human race, as the proper individual allowance is nearly two and three-quarter pints a day, we may take it that the above named quantity of food is washed down with about 4,047,888,000 pints of liquid in some form or other, that is to say, enough to fill a reservoir 144 yards long, 144 broad and 144 deep.

"Good-By" and "Good-Night."

Good and God spring from the same root, are the same in meaning. "Good-by" is only "God be with you." "Good night" is really "God night," or "God guard the night."

Every year the population of the United States is increased one million.

Vegetable Salads.

Vegetable salads are among the most acceptable dishes that can be prepared for a spring or summer repast; they tempt the appetite and impart a flavor to the rest of the meal. While the art of making and serving them is very simple, care should be taken in their preparation.

The dressing for a variety of vegetable salads is the same, yet different flavors may be delicately added, always being careful that one does not predominate over another. It is very important to have only the best ingredients, as wilted vegetables and inferior seasoning will not make good salads. The quantity of oil to be used is rather difficult to decide, but two tablespoonfuls to one of vinegar is the usual proportion for plain dressings, while more is required for mayonnaise.

Lettuce salad should be dressed only with oil, vinegar, pepper, and salt.

Salads are rendered much more attractive when prettily garnished with fresh green leaves, vegetable blossoms, rings of hard boiled eggs, sliced lemons, and fancy designs cut out of radishes, beets, or turnips.

The dressing should never be added to the prepared vegetable until ready to serve, when the salad should be stired as little as possible in order to retain its freshness.

The vegetables best suited for salads are lettuce, asparagus, dandelion, celery, cauliflower, water cress, beets, string beans, cabbage, potatoes, cucumbers, and tomatoes.—Harper's Bazar.

It saved his boy's life. Mr. D. A. Curry, Conductor C. & A. R. R., Slater, Mo., gives his convictions thus: "I highly praise Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for saving the life of my little boy, who is five years old. He had a severe case of the croup which the Syrup relieved immediately."

A dispatch from Havre-de-Grace, Md., says: The outlook for the fishermen on the Susquehanna is very discouraging, the recent storms having interfered with operations. The high rise in the river occurring so near the close of the spawning season will back the fish into the bay and practically end operations. From careful estimates it is believed that the herring pack of the present season is scarcely more than one-half that of 1892. The packers here look for good prices for the stock in hand and it is reported that some effort is being made toward a combination to control it.

The following letters are held at the Bloomsburg, Pa., post office and will be sent to the dead letter office May 23, 1893.

Johnstown since the flood has been growing with surprising rapidity. In 1887 the then borough had a population of 9592, with seven wards, now the city has 24,544, with seventeen wards. Some of the surrounding territory has grown with almost equal rapiditiy, so that the population now in and immediately about Johnstown numbers 36,000. And yet this place was almost wiped out of existence less than four years ago.

No matter how many candidates announce for the various positions to be filled, the people should select only the very best. And if not suited with the material in the field, they should draw on material not in the field, and thus exemplify the principle that the office should hunt the man and not the man the office, and teach place-hunters that a "public office is a public trust," and not a trophy of spoils to be appropriated to the sole benefit of the successful candidate and his friends. The people have a right to expect to be faithfully served for their benefit by public officials who are only public servants and not public masters, and who should be as humble and courteous after election as they are before.

The Legislature; well what is it? A dispenser of salaries? Of laws in the interest of sportsmen, or a sponge to absorb the substance of the people? Why not dispense with it altogether?

ORANGEVILLE NEWS.

The heavy rains of last week caused our local waters to assume an unusally angry mood. Fishingcreek was up to within a few feet of the W. & W. Railroad bridge, while Green creek had spread itself all over the flats above town. They were both higher than they have been at any time since the floods of '89.

Will Keener, the genial trackman of the W. & W. has hied away to other fields. He resigned his position and went to Watsontown, from there he goes to Bellefonte to oversee a band of Italians in the work of grading for a new railroad.

Squire Harman was unexpectedly called to Pottsville on Friday of last week as witness in the probate of a will. Returning he was under the necessity of going all the way around by Wilkes-Barre on account of the floods.

Mr. Creswell of Bloomsburg is organizing a class in singing at the academy. Orangeville has many good singers and in common with other towns many others that think they are.

Two funerals occurred on one day in our town last week. Mr. Wm. Delong, and Mr. Joseph Hughes were buried on Friday. Both were old and respected citizens.

By the non-working of some of the machinery on the locomotive, the freight on the B. & S. was detained at this place until evening on last Thursday. Another locomotive was finally sent from Bloomsburg, which towed the train to its destination.

SATURDAY HAIR-CUTS.

One of the aggravating things of life is to sit in a barber shop on a Saturday night and wait until some jay with Buffalo Bill hair gets his hair cut. The barber doesn't like to cut hair on Saturday night, and his patrons do not like to be compelled to wait for a shave in the closing hours of a week—the busiest hours of all. It is so the country over, and has gotten to be such an annoyance that societies are being formed for its suppression. The Philadelphia Record speaking on this subject, says:

"A novel organization is about to be perfected in this city in the Society for the suppression of Saturday Hair Cuts. The society will appeal to every man who loves himself as he loves his neighbor. The object of the proposed society, as stated in the prospectus issued by the Organization Committee, is simply to compel barbers to confine their labors on Saturdays to shaving. It is proposed to boycott all barbers who persist in the nefarious custom of forcing a shopful of customers to wait while some gentle chappie is indulging in the luxury of a hair cut, often supplemented by a shampoo or a singe."

Outside of places where there are professional gardeners, the forcing of vegetables is very little known in this country. People in general are content with "things in their season," and do not trouble themselves to force or retard. Perhaps the easiest vegetable to force is rhubarb, and by taking a little trouble, material for pies and sauce may be had some weeks in advance of the supply from the open ground. The things needed are clumps of rhubarb roots, soil, and a dark, warm place. The roots should be dug before the ground freezes. As fine rhubarb as we ever saw was forced in a barrel or cask; the roots, packed in a layer of soil and surrounded by it, the cask covered tight, and set near the furnace in the cellar. A box to hold the roots, and set in a cupboard or closet in the kitchen will answer; or a box or barrel may be placed in the kitchen. Keep moderately warm, and see that the roots are sufficiently moist. A few roots will give an astonishingly abundant supply, much more tender and crisp and violently sour than the out-door crop.—American Agriculturist.

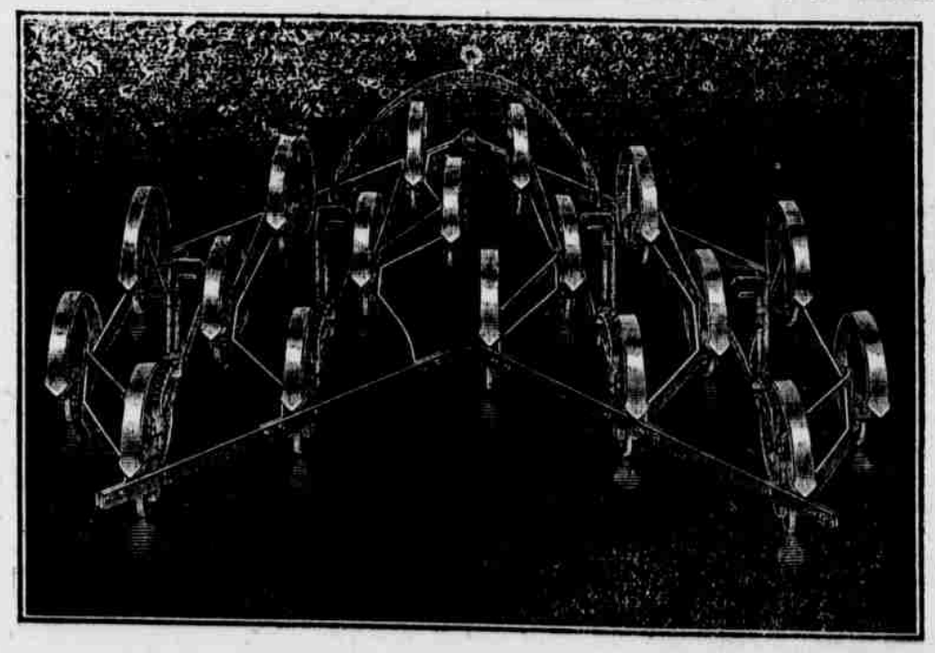
LOOK THIS WAY!



TO Farmer's and the PUBLIC -in- General.

We wish to say that we are still manufacturing and dealing in Agricultural implements at Orangeville, Pa., and certainly from long experience we should know the wants of the Farmers and public in general. And, in this connection we wish to say that all machinery we manufacture or handle is equal to any on the market, and sold at lowest prices.

We make a good cast head Land Roller, which every Farmer should have. Also Plows, Scotch Harrows, Cultivators, Wood Saws, Corn Shellers, and Feed Cutters, and a specialty of Horse Power Threshing Machinery. Then we handle the 'Empire" Fertilizer, Grain Drill and Hay Rake, "Hench's" Walking and Riding wheel Cultivators, "Woods" Harvesting machinery (which needs no recommendation), single and double Corn Cultivators, Engines and Saw Mills etc. Lastly we wish to show up the New Deerfield Lever Harrow the only one that has a separate adjustment for each tooth independent of the levers. The only four lever Harrow on the market whereby the two centre sections can be let down in a dead furrow, or any one or more of the four sections can be raised and the balance of the teeth kept at work, frame at all times being level. It has a self coupling hinge, no bolts or pieces to lose, with circular steel evener to equalize draft while turning corners. This Harrow is no experiment with us, and will be put out on their merits same as any other goods.

We also make and carry a large stock of Plow repairs, also an endless variety of other implement repairs.
